SOWING PERENNIAL SEEDS

Because of their permanent nature, perennials are very desirable and satisfactory. In the North perennial seeds may be sown advantageously in June and July. See that the seed-beds do not dry out and that the sun does not shine directly upon them. In states extending southward, the beds should be prepared in summer and let stand until the latter part of August or September when sowing should be done. To prepare the seed-bed dig up the soil to a depth of 2 feet, thoroughly incorporate well rotted compost and take over several times. Saturate with water and allow to stand until weed and grass seeds spring up and are destroyed before planting. When ready to plant, rake over the prepared seed-beds carefully to loosen the soil. Sift a 2" layer of long loam well rotted compost over the top. Press the beds firm. Water thoroughly and let stand until the following day. Now, press shallow rows with the angled edge of a board and sow the seeds evenly and thinly. Cover small seeds scantily, if larger cover twice the depth of their thickness with sifted soil. After sowing, water carefully and thoroughly with a fine spray. Cover with light boards that will shed the rain. Remove these coverings as soon as the seedlings appear turn the boards up and support so as to protect the beds from direct rays of the sun. For winter covering, a 6" layer of straw, hay or manure is used in order to protect the plants.

Water thoroughly and bury the pot, or place in cold frame for 8-10 weeks. This allows roots to form. When pots are brought indoors, keep in cool location and gradually bring to more warmth.

CULTURAL DIRECTIONS

OUTDOORS. Prepare the soil thoroughly by spading deeply and enriching with well rotted cow manure or bone meal. Do not use fresh manure. It is best to use a sunny location where tulips have not been grown for two years. Soil should be well drained. Plant bulbs 5-6 inches deep and 6-8 inches apart.

GLORIOUS HARDY LILIES FOR YOUR GARDEN

CULTURE OF LILIES OUTDOORS: Lilies like a cool rooting medium in open porous soil; perfect drainage, and shade from hot sun near their roots. In preparing ground for lilies, dig to a depth of 2 feet, being careful to avoid leaving a hard base and fill with a mixture of well rotted compost and soil. It is best to plant in herbaceous borders where young spring growths are protected from cold winds and the ground is kept cool by shade of surrounding plants. As soon as stem roots appear a covering of good soil should be given into which they may root. Further mulching should be given during growing period. Lilies are at their best after they have been established in permanent quarters for a year. Depth To Plant: 3 times bulb diameter.

Here is a choice selection of the finest hybrids and species. Give your garden that "Royal Touch" which only lilies can give.

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vale and
When all at once I saw a crowd,<

NARCISSUS

It Isn't Spring Without a Host of Golden Daffodils

This versatile, enchanting family of flowers, so easily adaptable to the garden or indoor culture, is early flowering, hardy, fragrant, useful, and beautiful. Botanically classed as Narcissus, many are commonly called Daffodils. The Polyanthus or Paperwhites may be grown in bowls of water, with stones to give the bulbs stability. For indoor winter flowering, 5 to 6 bulbs of any variety planted in a pot of well drained good garden soil and kept in a cool dry place until roots form, will bloom earlier than when planted in the garden bed or border. Several plantings will give blooms over a longer period. For naturalizing in the garden, place in sunny situation, in good garden soil 1½ times the length of bulb.
